Who was Daly City's mayor in 1952?

When are campaign contribution statements due?

What was the City Council's vote on that use permit?

The inevitable answer around City Hall to questions like these is, "Ask Anna."

She's Anna Ohlendorf, soft-spoken, gentle-faced lady who has served as city clerk of Daly City for the past 17 years.

Her memory is so good that she often has an answer on the tip of her tongue. If not, she usually can pluck it from Daly City's vast pile of records within 15 minutes.

But 17 years have proven long enough for Mrs. Ohlendorf. At the age of 62, the silver-haired woman admits she's tired of attending late-night meetings and rising at the crack of dawn.

"After this long, I really feel I deserve a rest," she said, one hand resting against a pink, grandmotherly cheek. A photo of her youngest grandchild, Scott, rests on the table behind her.

Elmer, her husband of 42 years,

THOSE WERE THE DAYS

retired a year ago and is impatient to have her keep him company.

Besides, Mrs. Ohlendorf said, "Life goes by so fast. I've known elected clerks that stayed long beyond the time they were really productive. I want to leave feeling I'm still productive."

Months ago, she told the council that she plans to retire March 30. Now that the date is near, she's becoming a little melancholy about taking that last walk down the steps of City Hall, attending her last council meeting, having the last lunch with her "girls" - the four secretaries who assist the city clerk.

Mrs. Ohlendorf's career with Daly City began 23 years ago, when she answered a "Help Wanted" ad in the newspaper for a census taker.

The Daly City native already had raised two children and believed she had done her stint with the PTA and local scout troops.

She got the job. Working under the city's director of finance, she earned the grand sum of 10 cents for every name she verified.

"Today I think I might be frightened to go door-to-door," she said. Raising a hand to her chin, she added, "Oh, that doesn't sound very good to say, does it?"

In the fall of 1956, the city clerk, Evelyn Mosman, hired Mrs. Ohlendorf to fill in for a secretary on maternity leave. The following year, she became Mrs. Mosman's deputy.

Although was deputy clerk five years, Mrs. Ohlendorf was surprised that the council appointed her city clerk when Mrs. Mosman retired in 1962.

"I was really naive," Mrs. Ohlendorf recalled. "I didn't think the council really knew me, so I was real pleased and a little scared when I was chosen. My husband was the one who encouraged me. He's always been my best campaign manager."

She was not opposed in the first election she faced in 1964 or any subsequent elections and had no trouble winning four successive four-year terms.

Mrs. Ohlendorf said she is fortunate to have a husband who enjoyed accompanying her to city social functions and understood that the job sometimes involved working late hours.

Until 1972, she said her husband would pick her up after City Council meetings because she didn't know how to drive.

Finally City Manager David Rowe took her over to Serramonte Shopping Center one day and said, "Drive." She learned quickly after that.

"I couldn't say enough good things about Dave Rowe," Mrs. Ohlendorf said. "Sometimes city clerks, especially elected ones, are at odds with city managers. I've only worked with two city managers and both have been great."

However, she remembers the first city manager, Edward Frank, as being "different." She explained, "I was the first woman department head. He (Frank) treated me well, but Dave is of a newer generation."

During her first year as city clerk, Mrs. Ohlendorf said she was very nervous.

Just a few months after she took over, some of the residents of unincorporated Bayshore City asked to be annexed to Daly City. Then officials from the Cow Palace announced they would try to stop the annexation.

Mrs. Ohlendorf panicked when she heard that the state attorney-general was sending a representative to

Council stand on parking ires developer

The owner of a swath of land between 2660 Geneva Ave. and the Cow Palace in Daly City was perturbed by the City Council's reaction, at a study session Monday night, to his plans for developing the parcel.

Sam Leonetti of San Francisco explained that he has tried several times to get the city's permission to improve his properties in Daly City and has been denied the necessary permits.

This time, Leonetti said he hired an engineer to work with the city on a plan that would win the council's approval.

Although the Planning Commission and the city's planning staff recommended that Leonetti be granted a variance that would allow him to build a structure without any parking spaces, the council was not enthusiastic about the idea.

Leonetti explained that the engineer he hired, Robert K. Crosby, first submitted plans showing a 1,000 square foot building with the three parking spaces required by the city's code.

Director of Community Development Don Fleming said the city staff nixed that idea, noting that the lot was so narrow that cars would have to back out of the parking spaces into a rush of traffic on Geneva Avenue.

Frankly, staff suggested the variance, Fleming said.

Leonetti's revised plans propose a 2,400 square foot building with no parking spaces.

Councilman William Schumacher said the larger building would result in more persons competing for parking spaces on nearby streets.

Councilman Albert Teglia said flatly, "I could not support a building there unless it had off-street parking."

Crosby pointed out in frustration, "Initially we submitted to you the only feasible plan that complied with the city's parking standards. We'll comply with whatever you want to do."

Since it was a study session, the council did not take formal action on the request for a variance.

Mayor Victor Kyriakis asked the city staff for an estimate of off-street parking spaces within a "reasonable distance" of the proposed building, in preparation for the council's formal consideration of the matter next Monday.

At that meeting, the council also is expected to select an architectural firm to do detailed plans and specifications for Hillside Park, adjacent to the Blossom Valley section of Daly City.

After interviewing 11 firms, a city screening committee recommended three groups of firms: CHNMB Associates of San Francisco and Wilsey and Ham of Foster City, who would work together; EDAW, Inc. of San Francisco; and KCA Engineers, Inc. of San Francisco and Abernethy, Newton and Griffith of

Years-long battle of I-380 may end Friday

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

The possibility of connecting the Coastside to the Bayside with a freeway through San Bruno has been debated for nearly two decades.

Hundreds of people have attended hundreds of meetings to discuss the subject. Much time and money has been spent studying it.

Every imaginable question has been asked, but it all really comes down to just one: Should an east-west freeway ever be built to connect Pacifica with the current highway system?

The state Department of Transportation says no, the Metropolitan Transportation Commission says no and the city of San Bruno says no.

But a loud "yes" is coming from city officials in Pacifica and South San Francisco, as well as from state Senator John Foran and Assemblyman Lou Papan.

Whose collective voice is the loudest will be decided Friday when the California Transportation Commission discusses rescinding the adopted route for extending I-380 to the coast.

CalTrans is recommending land acquired for a right-of-way be sold and that instead of building a new freeway, Pacifica's Sharp Park Road be upgraded.

The cost of extending I-380 into Pacifica has been estimated at $75 million. Improving Sharp Park Road will cost between $3 and $7 million.

Those people and agencies who do not support a freeway say widening Sharp Park Road to make it safer is the cheapest, most logical and most environmentally sound option.

Opponents say Pacifica's time has come for a better, faster and safer access to the bayside. They say any other approach is unrealistic.

Richard Gee, the CalTrans engineer who compiled the most recent report on extending I-380 to the coast, said Friday's meeting may be the last chance people have to speak on the subject.

"It's coming down to the wire," he said.

Gee has recommended the 380 route to Pacifica be abandoned because of a lack of funding in the "foreseeable future."

Rescission of the route is part of a state-wide cutback on freeways, he said, noting that routes all over the Bay Area have been taken off the books in the last few years.

"This is probably one of the most controversial ones," Gee said, pointing out the number of government agencies involved in the 380 decision.

The most difficult part of the process has been getting everyone involved to agree on one acceptable solution, Gee explained, adding, "But there was no way we could get a consensus."

Gee noted even in Pacifica, where residents would benefit the most from a freeway, the people "are pretty divided."

And in San Bruno, which must give its consent before another freeway is built within its city limits, the opposition is strong.

Rescinding the route was "predetermined," said Gee, adding the state has almost no other choice but to follow the guidelines of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

And it was the MTC, he said, that originally recommended 380 not be extended.

The deputy executive director of MTC, William Hein, does not believe the regional planning body is anti-freeway.

"Far from it," said Hein, pointing out MTC has advocated construction of freeways in Morgan Hill and Richmond.

Although MTC, which controls state and federal highway funds, has recommended the I-380 route extension be abandoned, he said the California Transportation Commission could keep the land for future needs.

Another closely involved with the freeway issue is CalTrans engineer Paul Hensley, who said he has found "it's just impossible" to reach a consensus.

"It's so splintered," he said. "Everybody's polarized — nobody's changed their position. They're harder now."

While the debate has continued, the cost of building the freeway has grown from $40 million in 1974 to $75 million today for the five-mile stretch.

Cost estimates include the $5-8 million needed to buy the rest of the right-of-way through Crestmoor Canyon in San Bruno and across Sweeney Ridge in Pacifica.

San Bruno certainly has not been shy in voicing its opposition to building a freeway through one of the city's largest remaining open spaces.

Mayor Dick Griffith has been a vocal and visible critic of any plan to put more freeways in San Bruno, saying the city has its share of cement highways.

At the center of the 380 controversy is Pacifica, a town of commuters with only one east-west link — Sharp Park Road.

The City Council's position is that the 380 route should be retained and an expressway or freeway put across Sweeney Ridge.

Council members also supported upgrading Sharp Park Road — a twisting, dangerous road infamous for its fog and fatal accidents — as long as that upgrading did not replace a freeway.

Mayor Nick Gust said the road should be improved to make it safer, but those improvements will not relieve Pacifica's traffic problems.

"We've got such a bottleneck," he said. "It's not going to get better, it's going to get worse."

Despite previous error

Sewer billing stays about as is

Despite a $400,000 overbilling problem that resulted from the current method of billing sewer users, the North San Mateo County Sanitation District's Board of Directors decided Monday to continue using an almost identical billing system during 1979-80.

Instead of basing sewer charges on winter water use from November through February, the new system will be based on water use during January and February.

As before, the charges will be included on homeowners' property tax bills.

Earlier this year, while the directors unraveled a billing error that resulted in overcharges amounting to $400,000, they discussed the idea of billing sewer users a flat rate.

A citizens advisory committee vetoed that idea, arguing that apartment dwellers and small families should pay less. The committee suggested basing the charge on winter water use, since homeowners use less water then.

At the Monday meeting, district Manager Peter Archuleta said the district would save only a few hundred dollars by using a flat rate billing method, as opposed to the current system.

The slightly different billing system that the directors unanimously adopted will go into effect July 1.

Archuleta reported that the district is proceeding on schedule with the tedious task of correcting erroneous bills sent last fall to 22,000 sewer users. The cost of correcting the error could cost up to $100,000.

Archuleta said he hopes to issue refunds sometime in May.

A persistent odor problem with the plant prompted the board to schedule interviews with five consulting firms April 2. The board will select one of the firms to do a formal study of the problem.

After the study is completed, the board will hire a consultant to design odor-control equipment and then will hire a firm to build it. Resources, Engineering and Management of South San Francisco estimated that it will cost $332,000 to build the odor-control facility.

In other action, the board authorized paying one district employee $50 extra per week to remain on call for outside maintenance.

The board postponed until April 2 consideration of the Town of Colma's request to join the district's service area.

DC father's efforts to sterilize kin fails

By KAREN PETTERSON

"Sterilization is not the issue."

Edwin and Joanne Tulley sat in their Burlingame attorney's office Monday and talked about their 22-year-old daughter, Dianne, the key figure in a four-year-old legal battle that has just about run its course.

The United States Supreme

Court refused Monday to hear the Tulleys' appeal of state courts' rulings refusing to allow doctors to perform a hysterectomy on Dianne. The California courts had held that they had no authority to order the operation.

Dianne suffers from cerebral palsy and resultant brain damage. She has the mental

City Clerk

the council meeting. "All I could think was, how would I do those minutes," she said.
The conflict was resolved with a special election involving more procedures that were foreign to Mrs. Ohlendorf.
"Lucky" is not the proper word for it. The reason for Mrs. Ohlendorf's success is tact.
She has made it a policy never to become overly friendly with any members of the council. When she had problems, she presented them to the council as a whole.
There were many times when she bit her tongue during meetings, wanting to say something, but she conditioned herself to be quiet.
And she was careful not to get involved in politics. Jokes about her affiliation with the Republican party — made by a long line of Democratic councilmen — rolled off her back.
These days, Mrs. Ohlendorf is generally the one to whom other city clerks turn for advice. Always eager to help, she has been very active in four city clerks' associations.
In recognition of her service, she was given the 1970 Professional Clerk of the Year Award by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks. She served as president of the Northern California City Clerks' Association in 1968.
After three years of study, she earned the rating of Certified Municipal Clerk in 1973.
Mrs. Ohlendorf is pleased that her deputy clerk, Betty Mazza, will fill her shoes when she leaves. But there doesn't seem to be enough time to pass along everything that she's learned.
"It used to be that when you trained a new city clerk, you just handed over the last 20 years of (council meeting) minutes," Mrs.

Ohlendorf said, explaining that procedures seldom used to change from year to year.
It isn't that easy anymore. Federal revenue-sharing, Housing and Community Development grants and food stamps, environmental impact reports and food stamps — all have intricate requirements that demand more detailed recordkeeping, more public hearings and, inevitably, more minutes for Mrs. Ohlendorf and her staff to type up.
The most time-consuming part of her job is arranging and monitoring elections. Since the rules governing them change every year, Mrs. Ohlendorf has spent a great deal of time familiarizing herself with the law.
She and other city clerks have decided that one new requirement is more trouble than it's worth: the law that says cities that have a certain proportion of non-English-speaking voters must provide bilingual election materials and ballots.
"I never saw any increase in voter registration because of the Spanish ballots we provided. Only 98 out of 25,000 registered voters in Daly City requested Spanish ballots," she said. The International Institute of City Clerks has decided to lobby for the elimination of bilingual election materials.
Despite the time it entails, Mrs. Ohlendorf has found elections to be one of the most exciting parts of her job — especially the close races.
Another high point during her career was moving from the city's tiny offices at the Top of the Hill in Daly City (now the location of the Guadalupe Health Center) into the new City Hall in 1967.
The entry of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System forced the Ohlendorns to move in 1962. "BART would have been in our bedroom," she explained.

But leave Daly City? Never. Their ties to the city are too strong.
The period following the passage of Proposition 13 was one of the gloomiest times Mrs. Ohlendorf can recall. She said she feels fortunate to have regained most of the staff members that she lost during post-election cutbacks.
Aware of the penny-pinching mood around City Hall since last June, she told Mrs. Mazza she doubted the city would bother to hold a retirement dinner for her. She was flabbergasted when the invitations for her dinner, scheduled this Saturday, noted that the event will be held at the elegant Lake Merced Golf and Country Club. Those attending will pay their own way.
As the date draws nearer, Mrs. Ohlendorf is getting nervous — especially about the speech she plans to give at the dinner. "People have been so kind. There are so many to thank. What can you say?"
But she's looking forward to that first Monday morning of leisure. "I'm going to sleep late, then have an extra cup of coffee."
After that, she and her husband plan to travel, spend more time with their children and grandchildren — and stay involved.
Mrs. Ohlendorf recently was appointed to the Juvenile Justice Commission for San Mateo County, a probation advisory board. She also intends to remain active in the local Soroptimists group, her church and the city clerks associations.
"I'm not going to hibernate," she said with an air of determination.
To stop participating in the city where she's lived all her life, the city that she loves and speaks of with pride, would be unthinkable for Anna Ohlendorf.

During a brief council meeting held in the middle of the study session, the council adopted a schedule of salary increases for city employees that was approved by a recent state Supreme Court decision.
Council members set a public hearing on Housing and Community Development Act funds for April 9, when they are expected to authorize the city's application for the funds so it can be submitted to the federal government.
They also commended City Clerk Anna Ohlendorf on her 23 years of service to Daly City. Mrs. Ohlendorf will retire March 30.
The commendation they approved says, in part, that she carried out her responsibilities "with the highest standards of professionalism and efficiency" and expresses the council's "sincere appreciation...for the splendid example of devoted public service extended by her to our city."

capacity of a 2- or 3-year-old child.
Because of this, her parents say, she is unable to cope with her menstrual period.
"She suffers this uncomfortable situation every month," said Tulley. "She doesn't understand what is happening to her and she is practically incapacitated."
The question, he maintained, is not one of sterilization but of providing Dianne with the medical attention she needs.
"We are not out to sterilize her," he said. "We are out to make her more comfortable. Sterilization is a side effect of a hysterectomy because of the current state of medical technology."
He pointed out that there are much simpler methods of sterilization available if that were the aim.
However, because of Dianne's legal status, it has been virtually impossible to have the operation performed. She has been ruled "an incompetent person" by the court.

and her father serves as her court-appointed guardian.
Tulley said two doctors had agreed to perform the operation, but that hospitals would not allow it out of fear of future liability. The Tulleys asked the San Mateo County Superior Court to grant the hospitals immunity from lawsuits stemming from the performance of the operation.
In May of 1977, Superior Court Judge Gerald Ragan agreed that the operation would indeed be in Dianne's best interests. However, he ruled, there was insufficient legal precedent allowing courts the authority to issue permission or grant the requested immunity.
The problems arise, according to the Tulleys' attorney Paul Vorsatz, in trying to determine just who does have the authority to rule in Dianne's case.
"Because of the dearth of case law and the lack of existing statutes, the court did not feel it could rule in this case," Vorsatz said.

He then took the matter to the California Court of Appeals, where Ragan's ruling was upheld.
"The appeals court agreed that it would be in Dianne's best interest socially, medically and emotionally to have the operation performed, but again, the court felt it lacked the authority to issue immunity."
The appeals court also brought up the sterilization question.
"The awesome power to deprive a human being of his or her fundamental right to bear or beget offspring must be founded on the explicit authorization of the Legislature rather than a mere inference deduced from the general principles of common law or of the canons of equity jurisdiction," the three-judge appellate panel said.
In the absence of specific legislative authority to intervene in the case, the courts would not risk a ruling which might open them up to liability, the attorney explained.

DC DMV office may go back to old business hours

Saturday service at the Daly City office of the state Department of Motor Vehicles may end as of June 30 as part of a pilot project at 11 offices around the state and replaced by an extra 1 1/2 hours Thursdays.

Dissatisfaction by DMV employees and the public were cited as the reasons for recommending the end of the project in a report from DMV Director Doris V. Alexis to the Legislature of the varied hours program which began in January, 1978 under authority of a bill by Assemblyman Louis J. Papan (D-Daly City).

The Daly City office and the others in the pilot project would be open until 6:30 p.m. Thursdays and return to regular hours Mondays.

The report was addressed to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee for discussion at upcoming budget hearings, there being no pending legislation.

An alternative to terminating the program is possible, contingent on receiving adequate funding, estimated at $3.4 million. The 74 largest offices located in metropolitan areas would offer full-day service Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and half-day service Saturday. The department didn't recommend this alternative, noting such negative aspects, in addition to the cost, as strong resistance by employees and employee organizations, staffing problems, and no evening service.

A final report was not due until Dec. 31 this year, but DMV felt that "15 months of pilot experience have given us adequate time to evaluate the effectiveness of varied office hours."

That evaluation resulted in the recommendation to terminate the experiment. Some of the reasons noted in the report:

— The public likes service beyond the usual hours, but only if there is no additional cost. Costs attributable to the program for 1978 totaled $291,400, almost half from additional overtime.

— There is strong employee opposition to Saturday service.

— The public's desire for extended service can be provided partially by keeping all major offices open an extra hour and a half one day a week.

The DMV director explained that the only way Saturday service could have been provided without paying overtime was to close the Saturday offices Monday, and to find employees willing to give up their traditional weekends with their families. But despite considerable publicity, motorists continued to show up Mondays at the offices, "to their annoyance and inconvenience on finding them closed," Mrs. Alexis said.

Insufficient numbers of volunteers to staff offices adequately resulted in costs of the pilot program being greater than originally anticipated.

The report notes that Saturday offices draw clientele from large service areas, and do not have sufficient personnel or adequate facilities to handle the workload properly, particularly for the increased number of drive-test applicants, most of whom were students applying for their first licenses. Then, because Saturday offices are closed on Mondays, the surrounding offices experienced heavier than usual workloads on Mondays, resulting in a poor level of service.

The pilot program has been successful, the report notes, "in the sense that it has given the department an opportunity to assess the need for service hours other than the normal 8 to 5, Monday through Friday, and the data collected indicates a need for some type of extended service hours."

CHAIRMAN

Joe Potter will be general chairman and Mrs. John Hughes will be floor chairwoman for Our Lady of Mercy's annual festival, "Jubilee" to be in the parish hall May 3 through May 6. The parish hall will be decorated with the art work of Edward Cuevas.

Library 'Friends' plan youth program

With the aim of impressing on parents and others the importance of reading to children and increasing the enjoyment of both children and readers taking part, The Friends of the Daly City Public Library, with cooperation of the Daly City Public Library, have planned a reading and children's literature program for March 31 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the Westlake Park Clubhouse, 145 Lake Merced Blvd.

Participants are Dr. Katherine Bishop, language arts consultant with Litton Industries and formerly director of elementary education at University of San Francisco, and specialist in children's literature; and Robert Muller, supervisor of instructional media of the Jefferson Elementary School District and past president of the California Association of School Librarians.

The program is free and open to the public. The program is presented under the over-all chairmanship of Belva Carroll, Friends' children's chairman, with Lois Manbert, specific chairman. Other committee members are Cecilia Enright, Janice Tierney, Claire Showers, Joanne Kruszynski, Carol Scherbarth, Diana O'Connor, Aurora Conti, Denise Schwarzbach, Margaret Connolly, and Virginia Tierney, ex-officio.

City Librarian Sam Chandler has appointed Children's Librarian Nancy Holland and Library Monitor Claire Showers to supervise a display of children's library books at the event.

The pilot offering will cover what the children's literatures, how to select books to meet children's needs, exploration and techniques of reading to children, and mini-reviews of children's books on exhibit. Free babysitting will be provided. Given as door prizes will be 11 children's books.

Livestock Young musicians win auctions

April 9-10

Beef, swine, and sheep auctions are set for April 9 and 10 at the 33rd annual Junior Grand National Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace in Daly City.

More than 1,000 prime beef cattle, swine, and sheep, raised by 4-H and Future Farmers of America youngsters, will be on the auction block. Market hogs will be sold April 9 at noon in the Swine Barn, while market lambs and steers will be auctioned April 10 at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., respectively, in the Sale Pavilion.

"Companies and individuals are invited to purchase one or more of these top-grade animals," Show Manager Darrell Chapman said.

"The livestock can be purchased in person at the auctions, or by writing the Cow Palace livestock department," Chapman added. "The auction, in addition to being a rewarding event for the person purchasing a young exhibitor's animal, is an exciting one as well."

The bidding of the "Super Six" — the champions and reserve champions in beef, sheep, and swine — is the main feature of the animal auctions. Two years ago, rancher Carl Zivissig of Sunol paid $15.50 per pound for the champion steer. That earned Patricia Gardner of Siquoc a record $16,895 for her labor.

An average steer (950-1,250 pounds) will yield approximately 450 pounds of processed meat. A 100-pound lamb will produce 45 pounds of meat, while 120 pounds of processed meat usually is obtained from a hog weighing 200-240 pounds.

"It's important that the youngsters participating in our show receive a reasonable return on the money and effort they have put into raising their animals," Chapman said. "The Junior Grand National is the most significant show of its type in the country — and the economic benefits to be reaped by the youngsters adds to the show's purpose. We like to see the kids come away with this kind of reward."

For information on how to buy Junior Grand National livestock, contact the Cow Palace Livestock Sales Department, P.O. Box 34206, San Francisco 94134. 584-2480.

The Westmoor High School Music Department played host to the Area VI Solo Ensemble Festival recently. Over 400 students from elementary, junior and high schools in San Francisco and San Mateo counties came to play and sing for written evaluations and awards. There were eight events going on all day long and concerts by those receiving a Command Performance rating in the Little Theater. Over 50 students and parents from Westmoor worked to make this music festival run smoothly.

All of the Westmoor music students who played in the festival came away with medals. Those receiving medals for Command Performance, the highest award were: Diane Carroll for her flute solo; a sax quartet consisting of Babbie Freiberg on straight soprano sax, Cliff Cormier on alto sax, Leti Turnbull on tenor sax and Becky Nicholson on baritone sax; flute duo by Diane Carroll and Leti Turnbull; and a flute trio of Becky Nicholson, Leti Turnbull and Diane Carroll.

The next highest award of Superior went to a flute duo by Lillian Wolf and Joann McGowan; a trumpet quartet of Maurice Lowe, Doug Jeppson, Jim Carroll, and Henry Braa; and an oboe-flute duo by Babbie Freiberg and Diane Carroll.

The third highest award of Excellent went to a flute quartet of Virginia Sanders, Corrine Clawson, Lillian Wolf, and Dayne Figone. Following them was a large brass ensemble of Charles Martin, Colleen Hammill, and Simon Lee on trumpet, Lorraine Parker on trombone, Colin Price on baritone horn, and Scott Dickerman on French horn; then a trumpet quartet consisting of Brian Watson, Jim Carroll, Henry Braa, and Doug Jeppson; a trombone quartet of Collin Price, Ralph Rehnitz, Kevin Allen, and Craig Stenberg; a flute trio of Lillian Wolf, Dayna Figone, and Joann McGowan; a saxophone duo of Cliff Cormier and Christina Loeffler; a woodwind trio of Diane Carroll on flute, Johnny Lau on bass clarinet, and Sandy Terrell on clarinet; a clarinet quartet of Nancy Hammill, Sandy Terrell, Anneli Loeffler, and Sonia Ennawwal; and clarinet duo by Johnny Lau and Sonia Ennawwal.

Howard Loeffler, the host chairman and Westmoor music teacher, said the best part of the festival was to hear the shouts of glee as the young musicians watched to see the ratings posted.

Animal Forum Cleanup after dogs

By Dr. David R. Barnett
QUESTION: The idea of "cleaning up after your dog" has become a sort of controversial fad. Our street is in an apartment area and most of the dogs are owned by tenants who walk them on a chain. We are not pet owners and so we feel that it is somewhat of a joke that these tenants are "exchanging toilet areas." The dogs down the street use our place to relieve themselves and our dogs use the places down the street. Only one of these owners has a scooper and her dog is so small she hardly needs it. The real offenders are the 40- and 50-pound canine monsters whose "leavings" look like a buffalo herd has just passed. Because you have to "catch them in the act" it is difficult to place the blame. Do you have any ideas on how this can be controlled? Our city does not have a law yet to cover this. Maybe that's the answer.
M. N.

ANSWER: You've touched a tender subject with me. With very little effort I could get on my soap box and rant and rave on this problem. I don't blame the non-pet owning public at all for objecting to having dog feces on the sidewalk and in their yards. A law such as was passed in New York City recently (and I've heard that it is working well) may be the answer, although I think our present laws, if enforced, would solve the problem.

It seems the only way to get the attention of some people is through their pocket books. If our existing leash laws were enforced strictly and a rather severe penalty assessed for repeated offenders, perhaps the problem could be solved. Certainly, if some effort is not made to deal with this problem we will have an anti-litter law or worse affecting all pet owners. Mentioning the anti-litter law is not a pun about animal birth control, although it is important that we reduce that kind of litter, too. Both problems go hand in hand.

Book hits new high in color

"What's new with the book worms?" Ah, I am glad you ask. The season has produced the most colorful books ever made.

"From England comes the 'Wonders of the World,' (Hamlyn, 1978) with words by Edmund Spenser and 150 photographs in glorious color and 70 in black and white.

So what is a wonder? Is it something that represents some amazing technological tour-de-force or is it something that shows the greatness of God or is it something that symbolizes men's ability to learn and to create? The author of the Wonders of the World is inclined to believe that when mankind calls something wonderful "It is because the object is symbolic of an idea which is of deep concern to us": life, death, beauty, glory, the explanation of existence and on and on.

Thus, writes the author, "Disney World is a wonder because it is the most amazing concentration of fantasy worlds ever assembled in the history of man." It shows the ultimate use of mass media and re-creates the most lovely dreams and most pleasant experiences of human history, from sailing with the traders into Timbuktu to triumphing over evil with Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Disney's World is a wonder because it presents entertainment that "is unique in the history of man."

Grand Canyon, on the other hand, is a wonder because of its astonishing formations; its sheer pillars of rock; its maze of colors; its colossal size. Before its extraordinary spectacle, mere man is dwarfed, put into his place and stunned into silence.

From Manhattan's skyline mankinds senses exactly the opposite. He thrills at the greatness of the human race and of the Creator who fashioned his mind. The skyscrapers, with their endless use of stainless steel, brick, wood and glass, left man "to the stars of the architectural firmament."

Seventy wonders are included in Spenser's book. They range from the primitive, statues on Easter Island to the great cathedrals of Europe. Twenty-nine of the wonders may be found in Europe, six in Africa, five in the Middle East, ten in Asia, one in Mexico, six in the United States, five in South America, one in Antarctica, three in Australasia and two in New Zealand.

For a complete change of pace from the What's New Department, comes "Penny Dreadfuls and other Victorian Horrors" by Michael Anglo, (Jupiter, 1977, $7.98). Here is a collection of escapist reading that delighted the sentimental people of the last century.

Some of the tales in this book are lurid and filled with death, cells and public hangings. Some of the stories pile horror upon horror to hold the interest of fearful souls. Some present the most awful monsters man's imagination can create. So spend an hour with Varney the Vampyre, Sawney Beane, the Man-eater, Sweeney the Demon Barber and with the great heroes who vanquished them with scruples and virtue.

Then there is a new paperback, "666 Science Tricks and Experiments" by the columnist of Science, Bob Brown (Tab Books, $7.95). "This book brings interest and delight to young and old alike who have a natural and investigative curiosity about how and why things happen." With line drawings it provides a world of fun in such fields as gravity and centrifugal force, electricity and magnetism, and air pressure and gases.

The Gamesman: 'Tennis' big on table

No game has received a greater surge in popularity over the last few years than tennis. Tennis has been around for centuries but with the advent of large TV contracts and big prize money tournaments, interest in tennis has grown to amazing proportions. It is estimated that there are over 40 million people in this country who play tennis indoors and out, for fun and exercise.

Now, along with Wimbledon, Forest Hills and the Davis Cup, there is the Virginia Slims, the Grand Prix of Tennis and World Team Tennis available to satisfy the voracious appetite of tennis fans.

But if all these tournaments plus your own time on the court aren't enough, there is one more contest you ought to try.

"TENNIS" is a card game from Parker Brothers. It is played by two or four players and may be enjoyed by ages 10 to adult. It is a fast-moving action game in which the object is to win one complete set. A set is over when a player wins at least six games by a two-game margin. The game play closely follows the rules of real tennis so if you are a beginning tennis player you may find this game useful in familiarizing yourself with the rules of the sport.

The game comes with one serve deck, one play deck, one serve marker, one ball marker and a gameboard designed in the form of a tennis court. Each player begins with a hand of 10 play cards which are replenished at the beginning of each game. All serves are made by turning over the top card from the serve deck. When a fault is turned over, the server turns a second card. The "play" cards are the return shots which are played in a rally. In returning a shot, the player may put down a "smash," (takes the point unless topped by a "kill"). A "kill" automatically wins the point, or a diagram "play" card.

This card must show the ball leaving the area from where it was played by the card previously played.

If you can't or don't wish to play one of these cards, you may pass or discard any one card in your hand. In either case, your opponent wins the point.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

The greening of America, an appropriate subject for March.

Because your diet should be greening, too. The fact is, although modern transportation and growing miracles give us selections year-round our mothers and grandmothers never had, we seem to stick to the old patterns.

It may be decades since our ancestors hit these shores, but we eat as though they never left home. So it's time to be a-greening. March is a good month to start. Help yourself; honor St. Patrick.

Green is a good color to think of in connection with your diet. First of all, most of the lowest of low-calorie vegetables are the green ones. Secondly, they can be used together or singly to increase the variety of selection. Third, they make plates look pretty. Fourth, the deep green vegetables are a super source of Vitamin A.

A half-cup serving of raw cabbage, celery, chicory, Chinese cabbage, escarole, lettuce, romaine, or watercress confers to a modest 10 calories or under. Cooked cabbage, chard, kale, peppers, string beans, and turnip greens net between 11 and 20 calories per half-cup. When you really want to splurge calorie-wise, asparagus, broccoli, and collard greens will cost between 20 and 30 calories for the same serving.

On my diet, all of these vegetables are unlimited. That's technical for eat as much as you want whenever you want. I believe in encouraging the vegetable as a snack. Why not a crisp stalk of broccoli in mid-afternoon? What's so different in the crunch except that you're greening yourself with Vitamin A if you choose broccoli?

For those not quite up to munching on a head of raw cabbage, those who know not the joys of the uncooked asparagus spear, those who consider spinach only a subject for Popeye, here's a method of enjoying a vegetable in its natural state in a new tasty way:

BROCCOLI SALAD

- 1 package frozen chopped broccoli or 1 bunch fresh broccoli
- 2 cups water chestnuts, sliced thin
- 1/4 teaspoon red pepper seasoning
- 2 tablespoons pimiento, diced
- 4 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 packets artificial sweetener

Wash and drain fresh broccoli, cutting it into small pieces, or thaw and drain frozen broccoli. Mix with water chestnuts. In a bowl, mix soy sauce, sweetener, and red pepper. Toss dressing over broccoli in bowl. Mix well. Sprinkle pimiento over salad. Divide into four bowls.

Almost daily you'll see brighter, greener produce in your market. Buy it, try it, green yourself up. It's the trend of meals to come.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Caraway potatoes is an easy oven dish, especially delicious with ham or pork.

Moist flavorful Washington russet potatoes are layered with Monterey jack cheese and onions. Eggs and evaporated milk are blended with caraway seeds and seasonings to pour over all. The casserole bakes until the potatoes are tender and golden brown on top.

CARAWAY POTATOES

- 4 large potatoes
- 1/3 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 2 eggs slightly beaten
- 1 can (13 ounces) evaporated milk
- 1 teaspoon caraway seeds
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Peel and slice the four large potatoes. Place half of potatoes in bottom of shallow two-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with half of onion and one cup cheese. Repeat layers. To the two beaten eggs, add the 13 ounces evaporated milk, one teaspoon each salt and pepper. Pour over potatoes. Dot with the three tablespoons butter. Bake at 350 degrees one hour or until potatoes are tender. Makes 6 servings.

B'nai B'rith sets brunch

Life members of B'nai B'rith Women and prospective life members will be honored at a brunch April 2, at the home of Marcia Glassel, International B'nai B'rith Women board member and chairman of International Life Membership. Guest speaker will be

For information or reservations, at $5 per person, phone Mrs. Tauber at 587-1014.

La Bella Pasta grand opening

The long anticipated Grand Opening of LA BELLA PASTA RISTORANTE in Edgewater Place Shopping Center, Foster City, was this week. SALVATORE FAVA's new restaurant on the boardwalk overlooking the lagoon will feature exclusive recipes of authentic specialties from all of the regions of Italy—Florentine, Sicilian, Genovese, Roma, Venetian, and others. Meticulous attention to quality and preparation of food is the rigid standard of excellence from Salvatore's kitchen, where he performs his culinary magic. Open for dinner at 5:30 p.m. Lunches for groups upon reservations... Luncheon or dinner in the atmosphere of a French country inn at famed L'AUBERGE can either be an adventure in selecting a la carte specialties or choosing from a list of entrees... The excellence of food selection and the huge 20-foot Salad Table in the new Brass Elephant Room of the hospitable GROSVENOR AIRPORT INN in South San Francisco, which is under the skillful management of Manager JIM RAINE, are worthy of praise. Just ask the many airline flight crews from San Francisco International Airport who stay-over at this well-appointed hotel... The "happy hour" at NORM and FERN LARSON'S KING'S TABLE in Redwood City is one of the longest on the Peninsula—from 11:30 a.m. 'til closing. Cocktails and mixed drinks are just $1. Famed entertainer REX BARNETT continues to attract country and western music fans to the swingin' lounge on Friday and Saturday nights.

Puppeteer returns to Finocchio stage

Talented puppeteer GEORGE BUCHANAN is back at world famed FINOCCHIO'S in San Francisco after appearing in many supperclubs throughout the U.S. Buchanan, who personally crafts all his puppets, deftly manipulates the strings to the wonder of all. Many new routines have been added to his repertoire, which includes Buchanan's swan (from Swan Lake, of course) often seen advertising the Oakland Ballet. This talented artist will only be in the Bay Area for a limited time. Four shows nightly, except Mondays and Thursdays... MARIO PIERONI, host at LEHR'S BOCCO BALL OPERA Room in San Francisco, is looking forward to Mickey Rooney's S.F. appearance this spring. Mario and Mickey were in the Army together during World War II. They traveled throughout Europe entertaining the troops and performed for Roosevelt and Stalin at the Potsdam Conference... There are three great restaurants in the Rockaway Beach complex run by the GUST family, which also includes a large motel and a new multi-story building now being completed. They have managed to keep each of the restaurants individualized and specialized: NICK'S for steaks and seafood (dinner-dancing Wednesdays through Sundays), THE MOONRAKER for outstanding continental cuisine, and CAPTAIN CHARLES for gourmet seafood in Polynesian nautical decor.

Rib Shack offers BBQ dinner special

Eager fans of barbecued ribs and other such delicacies, who already know THE RIB SHACK in San Bruno, are happy to know that there is now a second location celebrating a Grand Opening in San Mateo. As an introduction to the newest branch in their "chain" of rib shacks, BRONKO PUDARICH, TONY MARTINI, and JOHN LUKRICH are offering a "Grand Opening Special" of "buy one dinner at regular price and get the second dinner for one-half price"... When you feel like going all-out at a low price, make up a party of five or more and head for GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco. The "Oriental Chinese Wo Choy" special is prepared especially for parties of five or more. Cantonese or Mandarin style... There's no question that people from the "other side of the hills" find the Italian and seafood offerings at ROMANO'S Italian restaurant a strong enough attraction to warrant a drive to Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Seen dining here recently was Victoria, well-known interior and antique decor specialist who has moved her shop to San Bruno... A leisurely lunch (super sandwiches, salads and daily specials) at BAYHILL LOUNGE, San Bruno, can be enjoyed in a club-like atmosphere. So you won't feel rushed, lunch service is from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. INDEED plays for dancing from 9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights...

Stage star chooses Rosebud's for party

A big treat for dinner patrons at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco the other night when Deborah Kerr, who starred in "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," held a gourmet dinner party for the cast and stage crew after the final performance... San Francisco Fire Chief Andy Casper and his vivacious wife, Dorothy, were among the prominent guests at a festive anniversary party for Don and Mary French at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-Bounce STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower... Baked Sea Bass served with Potatoes and Barbecued Lamb or Pork Ribs served with pasta are Friday lunch specials at SERRAMONTE JOE'S, Daly City. Prime Rib of Beef with vegetable and mashed potato is a Saturday feature... Everything had better be authentic in German cooking at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT, a popular German restaurant in Moss Beach, as a visitor who really knows his German food will be visiting Owner TILLIE SCHOLTZ all this month and sampling her home-cooked offerings. Tillie's brother OTTO, who hails from their hometown of Frankfurt, Germany, says Tillie's cooking has been "sehr gut" and even "wunderbar"... There was the spirit of "wearing o' the green" on St. Patrick's Day at JIM SNIADACKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S. The Irish, the part-Irish and the Irish-for-the-day enjoyed dining under a special decoration of four leaf clovers... Many people still believe that oysters are in season only in months with "R." Forget that old wives' tale and indulge yourself with Long Island Oysters on the Half Shell at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant. Any month of the year.

Is Regent track reign in danger?

By TIM MENICUTCH

Serramonte High's perennial power, Terra Nova appears to be the force and Westmoor's at least a darkhorse in the up-coming North Peninsula League track season.

The time may have finally come for Serramonte to step aside as NPL track champion. The Regents bring a 34-straight NPL dual meet win string into this year's season, but Terra Nova may have the depth and talent to dethrone the defending champions.

Terra Nova
Depth is the key in the Tigers' quest for the NPL title. Sprinters Mike Brown heads the list of top athletes. Brown is capable of at least 14.9 in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Steve Webb, Ramon Osotio and Andre La Forge give Terra Nova some quality in the remaining short-line races. Allan Peterson handles the middle distance races and Glen Reid and Brent Rushing take care of the longer routes.

Mike Miller can hurl the discus 145 feet, and Tom Egilian is a capable shot putter. Mark Lauer should add plenty of points in the pole vault, and Kris Belland is the Terra Nova workhorse.

Westmoor
Kurt Larcher is the top athlete on a talented Westmoor squad. Larcher has clocked 1:57 in the 880 and 50.0 in the 440.

Ralph Apostolos is the No. 1 discus thrower in the NPL. Apostolos has heaved the disc 153 feet and is capable of improving on that mark. Don Piliwa handles the shot put event, and can be looked to for 50-foot puts.

Eric Raphael, Henry Hall and Rick Sanchez round out the remaining top prospects for the Rams.

Serramonte
The Regents are down a touch from last year's undefeated season, but are still respectable.

Ron Crenshaw, who quarterbacked the Serramonte football team, is a versatile athlete. Crenshaw competes in the hurdle races, the relays and the high jump.

Dominic Rios is a very good 880, mile and two-mile man, while Eric Jones and Alex Jenkins are fine sprinters. Pio Tuimavave is the team leader, and will get support in the weight events from Kevin Goodwin.

South San Francisco
Coach Marv Ashby feels his team should be fighting for third or fourth place in the NPL, and if not for a lack of depth could do even better.

Carl Montgomery, Jim Davis, Mike Brown and John Pauley are the top Warrior athletes.

Jefferson
Greg Alvarado, formerly coach of Westmoor, takes over the helm for the Indians.

His top athlete, Doug Levy, a fine hurdler, is sidelined with torn ligaments, and his status for the season is questionable.

Tabby Davenport and Robert Thompson give Jeff some strength in the hurdle races. Arthur Diaz is a quick sprinter and Sam Smith can throw the discus 145-0.

Half Moon Bay
The Cougar thins are just that thin.

Although the squad is outnumbered, Greg Raleigh will score some points in the long and triple jumps, and Mike McClellan is an improving shot putter.

El Camino
Small squad size will prevent El Camino from being two competitive, but Dan Neathery is a decent 440 runner and Bob Warren and Tony Montavo are improving runners.

Oceana
Oceana is another school with a small team. Mike Tyler is the top athlete with 150 foot discus throws. Dave Lawrence is a capable 880 man.

GIRLS
The girls' division will probably again not have an official dual-meet season. The issue has been up in the air for the last few years, and hopefully the girls will soon get an official dual-meet season.

Terra Nova

Debbie Arana is a good hurdler, and can leap 5-4 in the high jump and 16-11 in the long jump.

Other top athletes include versatile Kerry Lauer, Nola Barber, Lorraine Edgar and Laura Russi.

South San Francisco
The Warriors probably have the top 440 relay squad in the NPL; the runners are Lynn Mosely, Linda Mosely, Tricia Hilliard and Teri Baker. Carla Clay should be the top discus thrower and shot putter in the league.

Half Moon Bay
The longer the races, the stronger the Cougars will be.

Becky Schmidt is a quality runner in the 880, mile, and two-mile races. Penny Goldthorpe is a strong two-miler, and was all-Northern California on the cross country team.

El Camino
El Camino has some fine athletes, headed by sophomore Lori Costello, who can long jump 16-9. Allyson Guerrero is another good long jumper, and Erwin Bordinello handles the hurdle races.

Oceana
Ambrosia Patrick runs the 220, 440 and long jumps. Lisa Roiz will be good for some points in the 440 and 880, and Tina Claydon is a capable long jumper.

Jefferson
Vanessa Woods is one of the premier girls in the NPL. Woods has clocked 25.8 in the 220 and 60.2 in the 440.

Robin Reed and Renee Savory are hard-working sophomores.

Westmoor
Discus thrower and shot putter Carolyn Perkins and sprinter Renee Jackson are the top prospects for the Rams.

Serramonte
Yolanda Newton is a CCS veteran in the high hurdles, and she's joined by a very young group of girls.

GGAC swimmers

The Golden Gate Aquatic Club is holding swim tryouts, 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the College of San Mateo pool.

The GGAC is seeking swimmers in the 10-and-under category up to 18 years of age.

Belly landing

Canada College's Bill Swanberg does an uncanny imitation of a 747 in a belly landing after singling and taking an extra base on an error in game against CSM Thursday. He hit the dirt Pete Rose style about 10 feet before the bag and just kept sliding. Waiting for the ball is CSM shortstop Bob Medrano. This all started a four-run Canada rally in the fifth inning. Canada beat CSM 7-2.

Cap, San Mateo gymnasts beaten

The San Mateo and Capuchino high school gymnastics teams got steamrolled by Berkeley Friday night in the teams' non-league triangular meet at Cap. Berkeley turned in a team score of 115.8, easily outdistancing second-place San Mateo's score of 101.0. Cap finished third at 87.2.

Cap had originally been scheduled to host Berkeley in a dual meet, and San Mateo had been slated to host Clayton Valley in another dual meet. But Clayton Valley was unable to make the trip, so San Mateo traveled to Cap.

Berkeley gymnasts placed first in every event but the high bar — although a pair of Mid-Peninsula League gymnasts also managed to share in a four-way tie for first place in the vaulting competition. San Mateo's Detlef Braun and Cap's Ed Fonseca both turned in a score of 7.7 in the vaulting, along with two Berkeley acrobats. Braun won the competition on the high bar with a score of 7.0.

Team scores: Berkeley 115.8, San Mateo 101.0, Capuchino 87.2. Individual Events: Floor exercise — 1. Spinka (B) 8.1, 2. (tie) Tunick (SM) 8.0, 3. Laro (B) 7.7, pommel horse — 1. Sperber (B) 6.1, 2. Tunick (SM) 5.9, 3. Spinka (B) 5.2, rings — 1. Spinka (B) 7.4, 2. Sperber (B) 6.2, 3. Wheeler (B) 5.5, vaulting — 1. (four-way tie) Braun (SM), Fonseca (C), Sykes (B) and Spinka (B) 7.7, parallel bars — 1. Spinka (B) 7.5, 2. Braun (SM) 6.8, 3. Wilbanks (B) 6.3, high bar — 1. Braun (SM) 7.0, 2. Spinka (B) 6.7, 3. Tunick (SM) 5.7, all-around — 1. Spinka (B) 42.6, 2. Braun (SM) 36.4, 3. Tunick (SM) 35.5, 4. Wilbanks (B) 33.0, 5. Fonseca (C) 31.0, 6. Matulec (C) 29.3.

Fox gets 3-hit win over CSM

By MARK GEYER

Although Thursday's weather was more suitable for fish than baseball players, Canada College pitcher Paul Fox didn't let the cold wind and rain bother him.

The former San Mateo High ace had other things on his mind. Namely a victory over the Golden Gate Conference-leading College of San Mateo.

Fox went the distance by way of a three-hitter over the Bulldogs as host Canada battered CSM 7-2 and upped its conference record to 5-3.

"My control wasn't consistent," said Fox, who walked seven CSM batters. "But I didn't let that get to me. I just got the big when I needed it, and the guys behind me did the rest."

Well, the big Colt hurler was at least half right. Although one of Canada's heroes was behind him — centerfielder Willie Davis — the other one was in front of Fox for nine innings, catcher Greg Eagleton.

Davis and Eagleton combined for five of the Colts' 10 hits, knocking home five runs. It was Davis' second of three singles, however, that was the big blow.

With the score tied at one in the bottom of the fourth inning, Davis slashed a two-out, two-strike fastball to left field for a bases-loaded, two-run single which put the Colts up to stay.

The turning point of the contest could be pegged on that pitch, but the pivotal play actually happened just moments before. With one down and runners on first and second, Ed Walton smacked what appeared to be a double-play grounder to CSM shortstop Bill Medrano.

High school gymnastics

An escape from limbo

By PAUL SALVONI

In retrospect, the situation reached a stage at Capuchino High that was almost amusing.

"There was one kid who went out for gymnastics, then switched to swimming when he found out the (interscholastic) gymnastics program was being dropped," recalled Cap gymnastics coach Gary Fry. "Then, when boys' gymnastics was reinstated, he told the swimming coach he was leaving and coming back out for gymnastics because that was the sport he'd really wanted to go out for in the first place."

That probably wasn't the only game of Musical Athlete developing at Cap, Aragon, Hillsdale and San Mateo high schools recently. The Mid-Peninsula League Board of Managers (school principals) had verified on Feb. 14 that boys' gymnastics was being cut from the schools' spring sports program — a decision originally made by the board last summer in the wake of the passage of Proposition 13.

Then, one week later, the board met again. An additional $12,000 had been turned in since the previous week's meeting, thanks to the San Mateo Union High School District-wide Save Our Sports program.

Thus, boys' gymnastics was reinstated (even though the SOS program must still come up with an additional $8,000 by June), along with the two other spring sports that were going to be eliminated: girls' JV softball and boys' frost-soph baseball.

Boys' gymnastics, incidentally, would have been the only varsity sport to have been eliminated from the MPL schools' athletic programs during the current school year.

Not surprisingly, Fry and his Mustang acrobats were quite happy upon learning of their sport's reinstatement.

"We were in limbo for so long, really, I guess we were ready for just about any decision one way or another," said Fry, whose Mustangs won the Northern California team championship in 1978.

"What we might have done if gymnastics wasn't reinstated," said Fry, "is start a club-type thing, like, say, a math club. It would have been a low-key type of thing — just something to keep the kids interested. Fortunately, we don't have to worry about that now."

"I was very glad they reinstated it because I'd been out of gymnastics for two years," said Cap junior Ed Fonseca, "and I was kinda worried. We had gotten some new equipment since last season, too, and we would have hated to see it go to waste."

"I was real happy," said Mustang junior Paul Borque. "He (Fry) still wanted us to compete, but, still, when we thought we wouldn't be competing against any other schools, our heart wasn't really in it."

South City
Adverse weather conditions put a damper on the opening day of North Peninsula League track competition Thursday.

Although three meets were canceled, South San Francisco and Jefferson high schools kicked off the season, anyway. South City downed visiting Jeff, 84-39.

Sprinter Carl Montgomery recorded the top individual performance of the afternoon for South City by running a wind-aided 10.0 in the 100-yard dash.

South City's Mike Bauer had the only double victory of the meet. Bauer won the 440 in 54.8 and captured the mile in 5:01.

In the girls' division, South City downed Jefferson 60-29. Jeff's speedy Vanessa Woods coasted to a 27.0 win in the 220. Lynne Mosely and Carla Clay scored double wins for South San Francisco.

Will Billy North ever be a superstar?

Le Pacini

I'll find it difficult to get enthusiastic about the Giants' acquisition of Billy North until such time as somebody can guarantee that this year, for perhaps the first season in his big league career, North will run out all ground balls and popups, not dog it in the outfield, or hot dog it on the basepaths.

North is one of those guys that's had super-stardom predicted for him for years, and then suddenly wakes up one day to discover he's 30 years old and that maybe his best days already are behind him. North, incidentally, is 30 years old.

North's highest major league batting average is .285 (1973). His lifetime average is in the low .260s. Yet I've always had the feeling that the latter should be much closer to the former. In fact, I've never been able to fathom why North, with his speed, hasn't flirted consistently with the .300 mark, especially since the great majority of a switch-hitter's time is spent from the left side of the dish, where the batter is a step closer to first base. Yet, North usually bats less from the southpaw side of the plate. Last year, for example, he hit just .216 as a lefty. That's ridiculous.

I just have the feeling that if

North were going to help any team in the National League West that much, the Dodgers, who are still centerfield shy, would have kept him, despite his silly salary demands.

I hope I'm wrong. I hope that North is the centerfielder and leadoff batter the Giants need so badly. I hope his attitude changes and he makes me eat this column.

Yeah, and my grandmother's a Green Beret, too.

Some fans have jumped to the conclusion, now that the Giants have North at the top of the order, that Bill Madlock will drop to second place in the lineup. I think that would be a poor spot for him, not only because his propensity for hitting into double plays could neutralize whatever North might do by way of getting on base, but also because I really doubt that a two-time National League batting champion would be willing to perform the sacrifices the second man in the order must. For one thing, I can't see Madlock laying down bunts.

But more significantly, Madlock is a first-ball hitter, which is exactly what a second batter must take a lot of pitches to give the runner his chances to pick a spot for the stolen base. He must be patient. Of course, with North on first, Madlock would see a lot more fastballs. Any second place batter would, because a catcher doesn't want to be trying to throw a guy like North out on curves, changeups and knuckleballs.

would be the best man for that spot. He's a good fastball hitter. As a southpaw, he more readily would be able to hit behind North, which is so important in avoiding double plays on grounders or getting a North to third on a hit — even an infield hit to the right side — or all the way around on a hit into the corner.

Of course, Madlock is a better contact hitter than Whitfield, striking out only 39 times last year. In 1977, he and Rob Andrews set the San Francisco Giants record for fewest strikeouts recorded in at least 300 at-bats by striking out only 33 times. Whitfield struck out 69 times last year, though he did play in 27 more games than Madlock. Whitfield, however, last season tied a San Francisco Giants record, shared with Jimmy Davenport and Tito Fuentes, for most sacrifice hits in a season, 17.

So, Madlock should bat third, and North should make the greatest transformation since the Wolfman went into hibernation, and then maybe the Giants really will win the pennant.

There has been much speculation over how the new natural turf (grass) at Candlestick will affect the Giants. As I pointed out a few weeks ago, the Giants hit about 30 points better on the road last year than they did at home. On the other hand, many of the other surfaces in the National League are synthetic as well.

What it may all come down to, therefore, is that the Giants will have an advantage if for no other reason that most NL teams are used to playing on artificial surfaces, and won't be used to grass as will be eventually, the Giants.

But don't look for the grass necessarily to directly help their pitching staff, because the Giants own, basically, power pitchers, to whom surfaces make no significant difference. Grass should help the Giant defense, however, and that always helps pitching.

A factor which may be of special benefit to the Giants is their surfeit of day games. Many would suppose that so many games in natural light would tend to hurt a power pitching staff, since power pitchers are more effective under the lights, right?

Not so with the Giants. Four of their five top "power" pitchers actually had better records in the daylight last year than under the arcs.

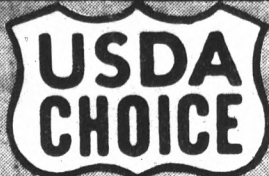

Vida Blue was 9-2, with a 2.16 ERA in the light, but 7-8, 3.38 at night. Ed Halicki was 6-5, 2.16 during the day, 3-5, 3.92 in the dark. John Montefusco was 6-3, 3.51 in day games, 5-6, 4.11 in night games. Gary Lavelle was 6-4, 2.95 during the day, 7-6, 3.77 at night.

Only Bob Knepper pitched more effectively in night games, but his variance wasn't nearly so sharp between day and night ball as were the four named above. He was 7-4, 2.85 during the day, 10-7, 2.49 at night.

And if the Giants are to make a real run in the NL West this season, Blue, Halicki and Montefusco are going to have to improve their performances in that division, particularly against the contenders.

Last season Blue was only 8-7, 3.49 against Western Division clubs, as against his 10-3, 2.09 against the East. Against Cincinnati he was only 1-2, 5.73 and against the Dodgers he was 1-3, 5.48. Halicki was 5-2, 2.93 against eastern teams, but 4-8, 2.73 against the West. Montefusco was better against Western Division teams in general (6-5, 3.65 in contrast to 5-4, 4.03 against the East), but had a terrible time with L.A. 1-1, 6.23.

All whole chickens are USDA Inspected. That's the accepted standard of purity. But every choice piece of Holly Farms chicken — whole or cut up — is inspected and graded. If it doesn't reach U.S. Government Grade A requirements, it doesn't reach the store.

DISCOUNT SUPERMARKETS

All Supermarkets are not the same . . . and we're out to prove it! Here's What True Discount Pricing Means to you ....

It's unfortunate, but many shoppers measure food savings ONLY by looking at advertised "specials" they see in food advertisements. Unfortunately, because "specials" can often be misleading, they can only give one a small sample of the type of prices you'll find on a few items.

No store can afford to sell items below cost unless they make up the loss by raising prices on other merchandise. So unless the shopper buys the "specials" only, the higher prices they pay for everything else will probably eat up the so-called savings.

Stamps, bingo, sweepstakes games .... may be fun to play, but the plain truth is that someone has to pay for all those things. Guess who? More often than not, the prices one pays for the food in those stores helps pay for those nice "free" things the store offers the shopper.

A sensible way to measure food savings is to judge a supermarket by the total amount one spends for what they take home. It's the final total on the tape that is important ... and that's where one will find savings at Lucky! At Lucky, shoppers consistently find savings they can depend on ... week after week ... just sensible everyday low discount prices to help reduce weekly food costs!

On a daily basis, Lucky discounts throughout the entire store. Lucky does not claim to be the lowest in price on every single item every day. In fact, NO supermarket is. But Lucky offers low everyday discount prices on famous brands, quality meats, farm-fresh produce, housewares, health and beauty aids ... in fact in every department. Since the savings are continuous, Lucky shoppers can shop ANYTIME and ANY DAY and take full advantage of low everyday discount prices.

More importantly, Lucky doesn't make out your shopping list for you by offering a few "specials" on a weekly basis, or for just a few days a week. You can shop any time, any day, and always take advantage of low everyday discount prices.

If you're looking for help in reducing your weekly food costs ... LUCKY HAS IT!

Environmental fairs bloom with the spring

By ARVILLE FINACOM
The view is clear. The date is right. From the yellow of introduced acacia and the blue of native ceanothus blooming along Highway 280 to the fragile pinks and whites of apricot and almond trees in home gardens and the heavy rose creams of ornamental deciduous magnolias centered on suburban front lawns, spring has arrived in North San Mateo County.

With the season come two noteworthy annual events — the Bay Area Environmental Education Fair, BAEER Fair for short, staged 10 days ago at Fort Mason, and the third annual New Earth Exposition, which was last weekend in San Francisco's Brooks Hall. For those who missed the latter, Expo will repeat in San Jose at the Convention and Cultural Center May 4, 5, and 6.

Although the BAEER Fair is designed specifically to help environmental educators share ideas, explore new methods and materials and become acquainted more personally with those who are part of the enormous human storehouse of Bay Area environmental expertise, the annual event is open to the public and as such acts as an introducer to many of the environmentally active local groups and agencies.

Many of the organizations providing exhibits and workshop leaders at BAEER Fair also display at the New Earth Exposition, where focus switches from education to application. Emphasis at the expo, too, moves from the "you" of "teach" to the "me" of internalized awareness. "The expo," quoting from its newspaper format printed program, "is a colorful marketplace which offers centralized access to thousands of tools and ideas that enable everyone to live better with less."

Since "living better with less" may be a red flag term to some readers, perhaps three definitions are appropriate here. "Consume" is one important term; "use" is another; "conservation" is the third. Strictly defined, "consume" means "to destroy" or "to eat up completely." We consume food, destroying it in its plant or animal form, transforming it to energy to power our bodies and to body mass. "Use" means to "utilize" or "make a tool of."

We use money. It becomes a tool with which we can buy food rather than grow it ourselves. "Conservation" is the "act of keeping from loss or injury." Perhaps the word "accidental" should be inserted ahead of "loss" in an environmental definition, since environmental conservation does not prohibit use.

As a result, environmental education aims to help humans understand how they are part of the total world around them — sky, water, weather, rock, soil, plant, animal and fellow man. As a further goal, EE indicates ways in which conservation becomes "wise management, with an ultimate aim of perpetuating all resources."

One group active in EE, the National Wildlife Federation, considers this first week of spring an ideal time to call attention to resources management as it applies to our scaled, furred and feathered fellow creatures. Proclaimed as National Wildlife Week, the week of March 18 and 24 marks the 42nd annual observance of what began in 1936 as National Wildlife Restoration Week.

The non-profit NWF, with headquarters at 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, DC 20036, and its California affiliate, the CA Natural Resources Federation, 451 Parkfair Drive, Suite 2, Sacramento 95825, provides education packets, posters and ideas for awareness activities free to teachers. Cash gifts to NWF support lobbying efforts and the purchases of land such as a 2,700-acre parcel near Mt. Shasta, currently home to 67 kinds of mammals, numerous fish, amphibians and reptiles, and over 200 species of migratory and resident birds, terrestrial and waterfowl.

In coming years, the Lava Lakes Nature Center, as the refuge will be called, will offer a window on an untouched natural world. Donations to NWF are tax deductible; the group also offers wildlife stamps and publications and gift items for sale.

Three familiar Peninsula groups displayed at this year's BAEER Fair. Abe Evenich, innovative teacher of "wilderness ed" at Daly City's Serramonte High School, explained his school district's Community Environmental Education Program. Those who attended the workshop he conducted as well as the one presented by John

Perspective

Olmstead, UC extension instructor and self-styled "freelance environmentalist," were intrigued with details of the 54-day, 27-state "HANDS Across America" journey the two plan to take this spring along with 25 Serramonte High School students. The acronym HANDS stands for "History, Agricultural and Natural Diversity Systems," a long title for what Olmstead sees as a 4,000-mile heritage trail open to every American. Olmstead calls the student trip "America's first coast-to-coast coordinated outdoor heritage and access survey."

Rotating representatives from among the docents-in-training along with several staff members from the Coyote Point Museum for Environmental Education explained the completed "Mudtown" exhibit, walked their fingers through a scale model display of the principal museum exhibit, "The Place Called San Mateo," and invited fair goers to "experience the unusual" in a hurriedly-assembled corrugated cardboard "sensory theater."

Volunteers from the Peninsula Conservation Center in Palo Alto detailed their center's significance as headquarters for such varied groups as the Sierra Club Loma Prieta chapter serving San Mateo, Santa Clara and San Benito counties; Environmental Volunteers, a group of on-call docents available to assist classroom teachers on outdoor field trips and in-class environmental awareness activities; and Nature Explorations, a group which organizes and conducts unusual field trips for the whole family.

In the past year, the center also provided volunteer staff for development of the Harbinger File, a comprehensive listing of some 350 Bay Area public and private agencies, groups and businesses concerned with environmental issues. The 72-page booklet, available for $3.50 from PCC, is a must for anyone in serious pursuit of avenues for environmental activities.

In the 40 years since World War II moved Americans in great numbers off the land and into the cities, many of us began to lose our sense of belonging within our total environment. Today, some of the students who took a searching look at the high technology-consumer oriented society of the 60s are the new leaders of a worldwide environmental movement whose physical, spiritual and emotional center is the San Francisco Bay Area.

The Regent

By GENNY HOM
Commissioner of Outside Publicity

I would like to congratulate three Serramonte High School seniors who have been selected to compete in the Bank of America 1979 Achievement Awards program.

Shirley Ong is Serramonte's winner in the study field of science and mathematics. Shirley has been on the girls' varsity tennis team for four years, Chess club president, CSF member, and Oriental club member. Currently, Shirley is student body treasurer.

Curtis Dennison is Serramonte's winner in fine arts. He is very active in the music programs at Serramonte, and has been involved in music in all his four years. Curtis is on the student advisory council and has participated in many music festivals.

Serramonte's winner in vocational arts is Marianne Lenci. Marianne is the president of CSF, on the student advisory council, and a varsity cheerleader.

In addition, 10 other seniors received certificates of merit for superior performance in specific study fields. Congratulations to Raul Gonzalez, art; Debbie Draven, drama; Anne Hardey, music; Diana Law, foreign languages; Dave Mackriss, social studies; Kurtis Wong, laboratory science; Susan Untalan, mathematics; Daria Wiggins, business; Theodore Neuner, home economics; and Denise Williams, trades and industrial.

Shirley, Curtis and Marianne have received a personally engraved plaque and will compete March 28 with students from neighboring high schools. Judging at the zone event will be by a panel of educators and business and community leaders and will be based on a written composition, group discussions, scholarship and civic and social activities.

First-place winners in this event then advance to the regional finals. Second and third place zone winners in each field receive $100 and $75 respectively.

In the finals, zone winners will compete for top prizes of $2,000, $1,000 and $750. All other finalists receive $500.

April 19, 25 students and 10 adults from Serramonte's environmental education program will leave on a 54-day adventure trip across the United States and Back.

Throughout the trip the group plans to see as much as they can related to the nation's energy resources, including geysers, plants in Cloverdale, atomic reactors in Los Alamos, N.M. and coal mines in Wyoming.

They plan to travel along the Pony Express trail in Austin, Nev. and take a canoe trip down the Buffalo River in Arkansas. Historical landmarks, like Jamestown and Williamsburg, Va., also are planned on the trip. Also, the student are trying to make plans to visit President Jimmy Carter and California legislators during their stay in Washington D.C.

Right now the students are divided into nine groups to arrange such details as transportation, meals, first aid, and fundraising. The students are putting a lot of hard work and research into this trip and all who go will have an experience they'll never forget.

The environmental program at Serramonte also is involved with developing a handicapped nature trail. The students will be volunteering their time and services to help open a trail so that all people including blind and persons in wheel chairs, can enjoy the beauty of nature. Gov. Jerry Brown will be host to a breakfast April 24 to help kick off volunteer week. Following the breakfast, the trail will be dedicated officially and work will begin on clearing the debris.

Serramonte High and the environmental program need a million aluminum cans to help finance the trail. This is really a worthy cause. Think of all the happiness this trail, when completed, will bring to disabled persons who otherwise wouldn't be able to use regular trails. I am extremely proud that Serramonte is a part of this project.

Students can bring their aluminum cans to room 121 before or during first period. If you are interested in helping the project in any way, please contact HANDS, (Historical Agricultural, Natural, Diversity Survey) at 2300 Bridgeway, Sausalito 94965, or call 332-2110.

Arena scheduling is coming to Serramonte. For those of you who are not familiar with what that is, it means designing your own program by signing up for classes the first day of school. The Special registration edition of the Serramonte Crown contains descriptions of all courses offered next year at Serramonte. Students are to fill out the coupon and return it to their home room teacher. This will help in planning their course selections for next year and help the counselors decide what classes can be offered depending on sufficient enrollment.

Students will receive instruction in the mail in September telling them when to arrive and how to enroll in classes they selected in March.

The advantages of arena scheduling are that it makes most program changes unnecessary, that it allows the teachers to control the number of students who sign up for a course, and that it allows the students within the normal restrictions of schedule and teacher recommendations, to decide for themselves when and by whom they choose to be taught.

The most important thing to remember is that careful reading and following directions of the packet students will receive in August is essential if they want to profit and get the most out of arena scheduling.

'Reading Day' at the Mall' in DC Saturday

Storybook characters will come alive for children and their parents Mar. 24 at the Serramonte Shopping Center Mall in Daly City from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. This "Reading Day" at the San Francisco Reading Association, endeavors to acquaint children and parents with good children's literature and to promote an interest in reading.

At least 25 members of both associations and students from San Francisco State University will come dressed as familiar storybook characters to read stories to the children.

Librarians from the San Francisco City Library and the San Mateo County Library system will be present to assist children and adults in applying for library cards. Each child who listens to a story will receive a "reading balloon" and parents a free pamphlet which offers helps and hints to parents of pre-schoolers and young readers.

The schedule for stories read begins at 10 a.m. at the four corners in the fountain area. A special hour from 2 to 3 p.m. has been set aside for stories applicable for children in the middle elementary grades.

Better airport access eyed

Improved access to San Francisco International Airport is the issue to be explored by a newly formed multi-agency committee. The five-member committee will consist of one representative each from the airport, San Mateo County Transit District, Airporter Bus Co., City and County of San Francisco and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission. The committee will coordinate its work with the cities and San Mateo County.

The goal of the committee will be to focus on immediate actions that can be taken to improve airport access facilities and transit services at San Francisco Airport. Some of the suggested items the committee may explore:

- Staffing of a transit coordinator position at San Francisco Airport.
- Installing and staffing transit information booths at the airport terminals.
- Development of a program to improve the movement and loading/unloading of transit vehicles at San Francisco Airport.

• Coordination of media advertisements to publicize available transit services.

As the new committee begins its work, periodic reports will be made to the joint Regional Airport Planning Committee of ABAG and MTC. The Regional Airport Planning Committee is responsible for the Bay Area's airport planning and the review of federal and state grants for aviation activities.

Pacifican dies after choking

A Pacifica woman who suffered cardiac arrest Saturday night after choking on some food at a friend's home in San Bruno died early this morning in the intensive care unit of Mary's Help Hospital, the San Mateo County Coroner's Office reported.

Deputy Coroner Robert Bergstrom identified her as Mrs. June Paulin, 60, of 712 Claridge Road, Pacifica. He reported that although firemen and a Medevac crew restored her breathing after the incident she never regained consciousness.

She is survived by her husband and a daughter, Bergstrom reported.

Landing fee bid offered

A spokesman for the general aircraft industry today accused San Francisco International Airport of planning a "discriminatory" landing fee which would eliminate small aircraft from the field without increasing public safety, and at risk of losing millions in federal grants.

Joseph Crotti, former chief of the California Department of Aeronautics, represented the 225,000-member Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.
